HOUSING FIRST, ALWAYS

Dear Mayor Kaarin Knudson,

I do not expect that this letter will get to you. Mayoral responsibilities are vast, but I hope that anyone who reads it will benefit in some way or another.

I am a Eugene born and raised youth and incoming UO student. I spent the last academic year in Portland with a program called Tivnu: Building Justice, where I spent a lot of time at homeless villages working pro-bono as a carpenter. While I do not have a degree, I have a unique perspective I hope is still helpful.

Housing is expensive. That's inarguable. Most of the people I worked for were middle aged or older, many have given up permanent housing because of how difficult it is to get off the street and refocused on their quality of life. They are not lazy, they are full time carpenters, custodians, cooks and laborers that can't afford a modest apartment, and many of them are my friends.

I'm not a communist, I'm just scared because of what could happen to my friends. Many people died this winter in the ice storm and those deaths were avoidable. Please do whatever is in your power to create the cheapest modest housing you can, free ideally. A bed in a closet with a shared bathroom is an improvement.

Thank you for your service to our city. I look forward to working with you, doing my small part.

MEDIEVAL WEAPONS AGAINST PEACEFUL PROTEST

On May 30 the University of Oregon held an investiture ceremony for its new president John Karl Scholz. Predictably, and commendably, the ceremony was interrupted by the chants of peaceful protesters calling for more meaningful action in response to the carnage in Palestine.

I read several articles about the interruption in local publications (including EW), but there was a critical omission. When Scholz returned to his podium after retreating to a secret location to continue the ceremony remotely, he made the following statement: "The interruption actually came at a pretty good time because I think Steve Holwerda was about to hand me a mace. And the mace is pretty heavy. And I can get kinda fired up about things."

UO made its recording of the event private immediately after its conclusion, but several videos surfaced online for those who would like to hear it for themselves. Although he may have caught his PR team by surprise, Scholz himself had plenty of time to consider the meaning of his words. Just months after the bloody attack against students at UCLA, this remark was extremely distasteful.

I hope the polite chuckles in that private room didn't fool him. He may have the support of UO's donors and board members for now. But his inflammatory comment has only stoked the fire. As students across the globe have shown us over and over again, no manner of violence — threatened or otherwise — can stop this movement for peace.

GROOVIN' THE '70s

Loved your Movin' & Groovin' issue about Eugene in the '70s, an amazingly creative and dynamic place. When I arrived in 1971, Eugene was rocking in a cultural Renaissance with newly-arriving young people bringing an awakening consciousness for healthier living, protection of our environment, spiritual fulfillment and a desire to develop community outside of the "establishment." Intentional communities formed on farmlands throughout the region, living by their own rules and trying more peaceful and fulfilling ways to exist.

Idealistic young people discovered previously ignored or neglected community issues that needed correcting and they got to work. We then saw the origination of organizations like White Bird Clinic, BRING Recycling, Grower's Market, Looking Glass, Relief Nursery, Sponsors, Sexual Assault Support Services, FOOD for Lane County, Saturday Market, Oregon Country Fair and many others. Young people created work coops that democratized decision-making and sharing of profits, like Hoedads tree planting collective and Starflower food wholesalers, a woman-owned coop.

Young people wanted to change the world and that they did. For more information and stories about 1970s Eugene, see: WeCanChangetheWorld.net.

GET INVOLVED - VOTE

Eugene Voters (or should I say non-voters?),

I am dumbfounded and disappointed finding that only 27 percent of registered voters in Lane County cast their ballots in our recent election. Twenty-seven percent! This miserable turnout shocked me because I think of our citizenship as well educated, thoughtful and concerned about our elected leaders. I guess I am wrong about that.

There was also only a 47 percent turnout for our 2020 presidential primary – also a pretty lousy number which may portend a dark future.

Why such low numbers? Too many folks seem complacent and apathetic. Many are feeling a sense of powerlessness and ask "What's the use? My vote won't make a difference." Or, they are not happy about their voting choices. Or, they just don't give a shit. There are lots of reasons why people don't vote.

Your vote does count! We cannot be complacent in November. I believe our democracy is at risk of being destroyed. I am concerned for the future of America and its citizens (you and me, by the way!) in so many ways — loss of freedom, choices, respect and safety for all was well as a devastated planet.

Please listen to the rhetoric of the now convicted felon, Donald Trump. America, with us at his mercy, will be demolished. Do his values resemble yours? Not mine, for sure.

Perhaps you're not motivated to get involved? If not for yourself, think of to-day's youth. What would you like to see them inherit?

Please, oh please, vote in November.

WHERE THE REAL POWER IS

While everyone is offering an opinion on what the new mayor should do they forgot that her role is largely ceremonial. The real power is with the city manager, you know — the one who actually gets paid and is hired behind closed doors by the mayor and city council.

Will the mayor continue to support the status quo who are profiting from the current housing crunch contributing to the homeless situation? Or will she provide motivation to local developers and find a solution to everyone's benefit?

The mayor, with her architecture background, could encourage new designs and the City Czar to update the zoning code that others have noted allows for the cheapest, ugliest buildings to blight our cityscape.

Maybe then we will be voting for a real mayor and not a cardboard figure-head who rubber stamps the rule of the tasteless rich.

WELCOME TO THE "RESISTANCE"

Pro-Palestinian demonstrators occupied the University of Oregon campus beginning in April for about a month. They claimed Israel is committing "genocide," and shouted such slogans as, "From the River to the Sea, the whole of Palestine will be freed."

The latter has been condemned by a large majority of the U.S. House of Representative as antisemitic, and President Joe Biden has denied Israel is committing genocide. The demonstrators also want the university to divest from companies doing business in Israel. This policy, known as BDS (Boycott, Divest, Sanction), is regarded as antisemitic and is illegal in 37 states.

Demonstrators defaced university property, broadcast slogans through megaphones at those passing by, marched through buildings during classes shouting slogans, and destroyed the grass in where their tents were located.

In an agreement ending demonstration, the university called for a cease-fire in Gaza, a return of hostages and refugee aid. It also agreed to expand their Middle East studies program and give students from Gaza scholarships. Despite the Oct. 7 massacre, however, Israeli students are not being offered scholarships.

Other universities had police remove demonstrators and offered them far less, if anything. I don't understand why the University of Oregon is doing otherwise. I find it hard to sympathize with terrorists whose goal is the murder of all Jews in Israel. Nonetheless, others strongly disagree. Demonstrators have been complemented by the Hamas terror group, and the Supreme Leader of Iran, Ali Khamenei, who welcomed them to the "resistance."

INDEED, SHAME

Regarding an EW Slant item from May 30 ("Shame on The Washington Post), I've read every word of this Slant piece four times (so far) with the same emotions every time: fury at the shameful "knew or should have known" assertion described, admiration for the fine writing contained in the five sentences detailing the event, and sorrow over where we'll be when journalism like this continues to erode from our democracy. Thank you so much for still being here.

THE CHOICE IS SIMPLE

In November, we have to choose between one candidate who wants to work for us and another candidate who wants us to work for him.

Republican legislators want to tell us what to do. Candidate Donald Trump wants to tell everyone what to do. In our democracy, that's a problem for all of us.

POWER CORRUPTS

Do you believe that power corrupts, and ultimate power corrupts ultimately? Do you believe that the love of money is the root of all evil? Can there be redemption without repentance?

We see the results of a spoiled pathological liar pursuing nothing but power and money all of his life. He has become a narcissistic sociopath without empathy or compassion. He has bragged of sexually assaulting women, been convicted of rape, bank fraud and now 34 felony counts of voter fraud. There are another 54 crimes charged that have been postponed because of political bias.

He would not have been elected were it not for this crime, the help of the Russians, and the policy breaches of the FBI which disclosed Hilary Clinton's investigation (which led to nothing) while withholding his own investigation.

While the president, his main policies were tax cuts for the l percent, elimination of President Obama's programs, and accelerating climate change. He eliminated all of the preparations to prevent and react to a pandemic, and when it came, after providing big pharma money to develop the vaccine, he did everything he could to spread the virus, with super-spreader events and discouraging masks and vaccinations.

As a result, he is directly responsible for hundreds of thousands of unnecessary lives lost to COVID.

The 2020 election was verified by Donald Trump's experts, as the fairest, with the least fraud, yet he claimed it was stolen and led an insurrection to prevent certification. Next time he'll eliminate democracy.

ENOUGH WITH ASININE TAXES!

Twice a month I get a pay stub listing eight different taxes that are confiscated from my earnings before I can even buy a loaf of bread for my family. Yep, 27 percent of every dollar I work for goes to others who think they know how to spend my family's money better than me. How about the $23 million per year Eugene Safety Tax that was rammed through without a vote of the people? How was "public safety" funded before this new tax and where is that 'old' money going now? PERS?

My boss is required to pay Lane Transit District tax on my earnings. According to the LTD website, for every fare dollar paid by LTD riders, taxpayers pay about $23 just to cover the cost of each ride. It's asinine. I won't even mention the millions in damage inflicted on our streets by LTD buses that pay nothing for road repairs.

Nor will I mention my property tax bill listing 18 different taxes I pay under threat of confiscation of my home. Taxes increase every year without fail. Enough! I don't expect to pay zero taxes, but there needs to be a limit.

Now is the time to send a message. Be fair, equitable and inclusive about it. Vote no on all tax increases and tax extensions

THE UO CAVED

On May 25, Karl Scholz, president of the UO, signed an agreement with the pro-Palestine encampment. There are 23,000-plus students at the UO, and the lesson I read is that if a few hundred stomp their feet and yell, then the president will cave in to their "demands." It is an indictment on our higher education that these students are not addressing even more severe humanitarian crises occurring in Yemen, Sudan, Syria and Ukraine. It's just easier to react emotionally to the news and to target hate against Israel and Jews. After all, the history is very complicated, and where is Yemen anyway?

The scary part is that this capitulation plays precisely into the overall strategy of radical Islamic extremism. George Washington University has a research program called Center on Extremism which offers insight into the goals of Hamas and other like-minded groups. It also clearly explains the difference between Islam as a religion and far-right radical Islamism i.e. Hamas, a defined terrorist organization.

The strategy is definitely an in-your-face one — insist that a University (or any entity) demand a cease-fire even though this is not under the jurisdiction of the organization, insist on displays of flags and other paraphernalia even when it's inappropriate, dictate the hummus menu and rename Johnson Hall to Alareer Hall, rest of UO be damned.

A Contaminated Lake? You're shittin' me.

THE OREGON DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE FILES A LAWSUIT AGAINST THE OWNER OF A WEST EUGENE HORSE BOARDING FACILITY CLAIMING A GIANT MOUND OF MANURE HAS BEEN ACTIVELY CONTAMINATING FERN RIDGE RESERVOIR SINCE 2016

By Faheem Khan

he Oregon Department of Agriculture filed a lawsuit against the owner of Lakeview Stables, a horse boarding facility in West Eugene, alleging it has steadily amassed a 200,000 cubic foot mound of horse manure that threatens to contaminate Fern Ridge Reservoir The mound translates to roughly 4.5 acres — or three football fields filled one foot deep — of horse manure.

An average horse weighs 1,000 pounds. If healthy, horses eat 20 pounds of food and drink eight gallons of water every day. A horse takes care of business frequently, sometimes pooping up to 13 times a day, producing over 45 pounds of manure. Needless to say horses poop — a lot. But where is all of it supposed to go?

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, horse manure "contains primary macronutrients" and can be used by farmers as natural fertilizer. It is also proven to have a positive effect on the overall health of soil.

Neighbors Eugene Weekly spoke to agree with this philosophy and express support for Lakeview Stables owner Carolyn Tohm against the allegations by the state. Just down the street is New Hope Ranch, a family-run horse boarding facility.

Ranch manager Amy Hisaoka said the complaints in the lawsuit were "not warranted," adding "I hope it's not dangerous, but horses are herbivores and we are just recycling grass. Why would people use it if they found it to be so dangerous?"

She went on to say that the dangers that manure piles pose in comparison to the massive number of septic tanks in rural parts of Lane County is "laughable," as she points out that "waste water is all over Oregon."

Amy Hisaoka's father, Wayne Hisaoka, the owner of New Hope Ranch, says, "These are farms. What are you gonna do? We are in the country. It's the best way to recycle."

It all started in 2016, after a community member made a complaint expressing concern about possible pollution in Lakeview Stable's groundwater. After sending a field agent, the Oregon Department of Agriculture determined that the manure pile also poses a substantial hazard to the nearby Fern River Reservoir.

The ODA staffer collected a water sample in the road ditch alongside Lakeview Stables that drains into the Fern Ridge Lake in November 2016. The water was tested for E.coli and contained a small level of 2mpn/100mL (mpn-most probable number - is a technical method for estimating the number of bacteria in a food or water sample). This however, was not even close to violating the state water quality standard of 406mpn/100mL for E.coli per the Notice of Noncompliance Tohm received in 2021.

Bhe state still maintains it is "highly likely" that the manure pile contains excessive amounts of contaminants like E.Coli and other nitrates such as phosphorus that would be carried by rainwater from the stables to a nearby ditch draining into Fern Ridge Lake.

In November 2017 ODA tested a soil sample for phosphorus levels. The total levels of 967 mg/kg were well over what the state says are "normal levels in non-productive areas," at  $10~\rm mg/kg$ .

In a notice of non compliance issued to Tohm in 2021, ODA stated, "Given that there is no vegetation to assimilate the nutrients, the nutrients are available to mobilize to surface water and groundwater."

Nitrogen and phosphorus support the growth of algae, bacteria and aquatic plants, but an excessive concentration of these elements can pollute and reduce the overall quality of a body of water, according to the National Institutes of Health.

been tested for E.Coli and other nitrates since the state's visit to Lakeview Stables in 2017.

ODA department staff conducted a follow-up site visit on October 16, 2019, to view changes that have been made in response to the plans of correction. A 2021 notice of non-compliance issued to Tohm states that the facility owner had told ODA that "she had tried to work with an excavation company to export stored manure to an off-site property, but the company went out of business and the owners of the off-site property decided that they did not want the material."

So far, Thom has paid three fines for not complying

'THESE ARE FARMS. WHAT ARE YOU GONNA DO? WE ARE IN THE COUNTRY. IT'S THE BEST WAY TO RECYCLE.'

— Wayne Hisaoka, owner of New Hope Ranch

EW asked ODA Director of Communications Andrea Cantu-Schomus if there is proof that the manure contamination has drained into the state's water; she replied, "In this case waste has been placed in a location where such wastes are likely to be carried to waters of the state."

The state also maintains that Tohm has been issued with multiple "plans of correction" throughout the last seven years to adopt the agricultural rules set in place to protect water quality and enhance pollution control in the state of Oregon.

It is not clear, per Cantu-Schomus' reply, if the ground-water under the manure pile or if Fern Ridge Lake has with the state's water quality rules, including one that totaled more than $6,000.

Tohm tells EWthat she has been complying with the ODA's requests. But Cantu-Schomus says, "At all site visits, the landowner has still placed waste at the storage location. ODA has worked with the landowner and DOJ to work toward compliance."

When asked what she made of the numerous plans of correction that the ODA has proposed to her over the course of the last seven years, Tohm briefly denied all allegations, saying, "It's more than safe and nothing is running down to Fern Ridge. It sucks."

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON ADMINISTRATORS AND PRO-PALESTINE PROTESTERS CONTINUE TO CLASH

By Emerson Brady

n Thursday, May 30, roughly 50 University of Oregon students shut down UO President John Karl Scholz's investiture at Matthew Knight Arena, protesting the university's investment ties to Israel.

During the disruption of the ceremony that formally installed him as president, Scholz said that he can "get fired up about these things" and joked about being offered a heavy mace.

As part of the ceremony, Scholz was presented with the president's medallion and university mace, the official symbols of leadership at the UO.

UO Assistant Director of Issues Management Eric Howald wrote in an email to Eugene Weekly that Scholz's remarks were "an attempt to lighten a tense moment created by protesters disrupting and delaying a milestone event."

According to UO Director of Issues Management Angela Seydel, those who violated the student code of conduct and/or vandalized at the event will be subject to disciplinary action. She writes in an email to EW that protesters painted the doors and exterior wall of Matthew Knight Arena red.

This protest comes one week after the university and the UO Palestine Coalition signed an agreement on May 22 that students would take down the encampment in front of the Matthew Knight Arena if the university agreed to a list of demands.

These demands included releasing a statement calling for a ceasefire in Gaza, creating five full-ride scholarships for displaced Palestinian students, starting a working task force that would investigate the UO Foundation investments and contracts, agreeing not to punish protesters involved in the encampment and establishing a physical space for those involved in the encampment to organize.

UO students took down the encampment on May 23, and Scholz released a statement that same day saying, "I believe it is now appropriate to express my heartfelt anguish at events in Israel and Gaza, and my support for a ceasefire, return of the hostages, and humanitarian aid that reaches civilians affected by the violence." He also outlined some key details of the agreement.

However, the UO Palestine Coalition says that Scholz issued a different statement than the one it had negotiated and misrepresented the nature of the agreement by calling it "similar" to an earlier proposal the coalition had rejected.

In an email to EW, the coalition writes that the original statement it agreed to was, "We are heartbroken over the devastating loss of innocent civilian Palestinian and Israeli lives in the Middle East and particularly in Gaza. We support an end to violence and to the current humanitarian and hostage crisis in Gaza."

The UO Palestine Coalition writes, "While we are angered at this violation of our agreement, our core objection is still that the University has an endowment of billions of dollars invested partially in the U.S.-Israeli war machine."

FOR 25 DAYS STUDENTS CAMPED OUTSIDE

the UO Knight Library and in front of Scholz's Johnson Hall office, calling on the university to divest from Israel and demand a ceasefire in Gaza.

At its peak, more than 100 tents sprawled across the quad. Stations with medics, media liaisons, food and water, and for sign-making, shirt-making and onboarding lined the outside of the camp. On the sidewalks surrounding the Knight Library lawn were names of some of the deceased in Gaza written in chalk.

Every morning the Students for Justice for Palestine posted a schedule on a whiteboard outside as well as on their social media filled with negotiation meeting times, teach-ins hosted by UO professors and local activists, craft-making, protests and sit-ins.

"Being a part of a collective power where we were all here fighting for the same thing and we're here together at camp all the time, right? That was just so enriching on so many levels," says former encampment member and UO student Gino Polvorosa.

The Students for Justice for Palestine, UO Jewish Voices for Peace and the Working Committee of Grads for Palestine spearheaded the camp as well as organized a boycott, divestment and sanctions campaign.

Their demands include immediate divestment from Jasper Ridge Partners, an investment management service that invests the UO Foundation's funds in companies tied to the defense industry such as aerospace manufacturer Boeing, investment management company Vanguard and Israel-based international military technology company Elbit Systems. The coalitions also called on the university to boycott academic exchanges and other relationships with Israeli universities.

According to the United Nations Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs, Israel has killed more than 36,000 Palestinians — more than 14,500 of those casualties are children — since the Oct. 7 Hamas attack on Israel, which killed more than 1,200 Israelis.

"We are here to pressure our university to divest from their holdings in companies that perpetuate this genocide, perpetuate the Israeli apartheid state," UO Jewish Voices for Peace leader Gabriella Moreno said on the second day of the encampment. "We're here to show our voices and show our strength in numbers as students in order to pressure our university."

The camp was one of many popping up across the country at the time — all calling for divestment from Israeli companies and defense manufacturing companies that contribute to the Israeli military. While some of the other encampments across the country faced violent counterprotesters, such as at UCLA, and police use of force like at Columbia University, the UO's encampment remained peaceful with minimal police interaction.

On May 15, one UO student protester, Hazel Muller Key, was charged with criminal mischief for gluing posters to the side of campus buildings.

Over the course of 25 days, the encampment, which relocated to Johnson Hall on May 16, held a series of negotiations with UO. According to Seydel, there were eight meetings between the student protesters and the original negotiations team, five meetings between the student protesters and the faculty/senate negotiations team, and four informal meetings between the student protesters and representatives from the Office of the Provost, for a total of 17.

Moreno, who was present for these meetings, says negotiations went through several rounds and iterations because the university didn't take their demands seriously. "We were originally meeting with members of the university who had nothing to do with the UO Foundation and its investments," Moreno says.

The original negotiations team was Denis Galvan, vice provost for Global Engagement, Allison Blade, associate vice president and chief of staff in the Office of the Provost, Krista Dillon, chief of staff and senior director of operations for Safety and Risk Services and Marcus Langford, dean of students.

After the eight meetings with the original negotiations team, she says "It felt like things were going nowhere," so the protesters decided to continue to rally and demand to meet with Scholz.

Moreno and a leader for the SJP met with Scholz on May 14 and began meeting with the UO Senate most nights starting the weekend of May 18 until they got the deal on the 22nd.

Scholz released two public statements addressing the encampment's demands as well as numerous emails to students and faculty calling for an end to the encampment. In a Tuesday, May 7, email Scholz asked for the overnight encampment to end and said the university would be "moving forward with the student conduct process related to violations of campus policy as appropriate."

The UO revoked academic amnesty for protesters on May 7 as well.

The protesters held six rallies, including a "100 Hours in Chains" rally on May 20 to honor three students who chained themselves to Johnson Hall for over 100 hours.

University administrators did not publicly respond to that particular protest. Polvorosa, one of the three students chained to Johnson Hall, says, "It was frustrating because they claim to care so much about their students and the health and safety of students, and they're just allowing their students to be physically locked outside for over 100 hours."

Seydel writes in an email to EW, "The choice of some protesters to chain themselves to a university building marks an unfortunate escalation of recent protest activities and incurs additional violations of university policy and the student code of conduct. These actions disrupt university operations, impede access to the building and create unsafe obstructions to people exiting the building in case of an emergency."

Protesters reached an agreement with the UO negotiation team two days after the "100 Hours in Chains" rally.

"It's easy to focus on the demands that weren't met, but I think it's important to not let that take over," Polvorosa says. "Take the win that you got from this — whether that's from feeling like you have a sense of community now or you had a great conversation where you learned something new — let that impact you just as much as what you're not getting."

Moreno, who was not present at the investiture protest, says that the UO Palestine Coalition never promised to stop protesting in its agreement. She says that while she cannot comment on whether there will be more protests in the future, the SJP is hosting a "People's Commencement for the Popular University for Palestine, Class of 2024," at 6 pm Friday, June 7, on the UO's Gerlinger Lawn.

Summer Has Arrived

AS THE WEATHER HEATS UP, SO DOES EUGENE WEEKLY'S SUMMER GUIDE

he Earth made one full rotation to get us back to sunny days, breezy nights, picnics, floats down the Willamette River, college students homebound and pollen-attacking allergies with every step. Now is the moment you all have been waiting for — drum roll please — four months' worth of events dedicated to the season. Locals and travelers are bound to stumble upon something to their liking.

If you're looking to stay close to Eugene and are feeling artsy, check out the town's eclectic art scene at the First Friday ArtWalk downtown or the Whiteaker Last Friday ArtWalk each month showcasing local artists and vendors. Local artists of all ages are also highlighted at the Downtown Eugene Public Library's Art Show Opening: Love Your Library August 2.

The town hosts all sorts of arts and culture events just like the Festivalito — Latin Dance Celebration of Summer on June 29 in Kesey Square. Spice things up with an introduction to Cuban salsa dance lessons, performances and socializing while DJ Vito plays tracks of bachata, merengue, cumbia, timba and salsa. The dancing continues with Revelers Contemporary Circus: Aerial Dancing and Circus Arts July 3 at the Springfield Public Library. This event demonstrates athleticism with captivating performances and thrilling aerial moves.

Summer means festivals, which Oregon is full of during this time. The Oregon Bach Festival runs June 28 to July 14 with Bach: Ascension Oratorio, OBF Family: Carnival of the Animals, Snider: Mass for the Endangered and more performances. And for the 13th year, Adkins Blueberry Farm hosts its annual Blueberry Festival Blues & Brews July 20. Stroll through the endless blueberry rows and handpick your very own fresh, ripe blueberries while listening to live music from Bradley Shepherd's Perfect Flavor led by singer, songwriter and guitarist Bradley Shepherd, Dragon Thunder Voodoo, a four-piece classic rock cover band and more local artists. Don't forget about the Oregon Festival of American Music 2024: Words & Music By... July 31 to August 10 at The Shedd, where prolific lyricists of the American Songbook are explored. Later in the month, the 3rd Annual Oregon Aloha Festival is August 24 at Alton Baker Park — experience Pacific Islander culture, Hawaiian cuisines and more.

And now you're probably wondering about the summer music scene. If you want to drive to Bend, then Hayden Homes Amphitheater has numerous artists performing from Jordan Davis, a country-pop artist, June 20 to The Avett Brothers July 14. More locally, Norah Jones makes a pit stop at The Cuthbert Amphitheater August 1 while on her Visions Tour or check out The Beach Boys, the '60s formed rock band (yes, they are still around) August 25. As a folk and Americana group, The National Parks takes the stage at WOW Hall September 28. This band takes indie, folk and pop to the next level.

Now, it would be great if we could expand on every event in Eugene and beyond, but you don't want to read a whole book when you can just check out the EW Summer Guide listings. —  $Brianna\ Murschel$

Days at Green Island are the second Saturday of the month from March to December. This summer, 1,100 acres and seven miles of gravel road and paved paths in a private area become public on certain days for people to explore. Grab your fishing gear and head out to the edge of the Willamette River or find restored gravel ponds. The paths are accessible for you and your bike to spin your wheels and get going. Feel like walking? Stroll near the confluence where the Willamette and McKenzie Rivers meet and observe 15 years of tree-planting and over 150 species of birds. The Green Island Ambassadors are a group of volunteers trained to direct you where you need to go and answer questions. "It's easy — even when there's lots of folks out there — to have a private quiet experience with nature. You can really feel like you're out in a wild area," says Holly McRae, McKenzie River Trust's events and outreach manager. "It's really just meant as a way for people to connect with Green Island in the way that they want to." — Brianna Murschel

Living River Exploration Days are 8 am to 6 pm June 8, July 13 and August 10 and 8 am to 4 pm Sept. 14, Oct.12, Nov. 9 and Dec. 14 at Green Island, 31799-31601 Green Island Road. FREE. Pets are prohibited. More information at McKenzieRiver.org.

"Qigong is the art of cultivating and harmonizing the body, breath and mind, leading to a state of balanced vitality and inner peace," says Nate Guadagni (pictured). It's a definition given to him by one of his teachers. He hosts Qigong with Nate every Tuesday in June and July at the Emerald Park pavilion. For about 20 years, Guadagni has practiced qigong in different styles and systems. Thousands of years ago, qigong was developed as traditional Chinese medicine. The exercises promote energy stimulating the mind, body and spirit in a different way than yoga does. No matter your age, weight, size or identity, everyone is welcome in Guadagni's classes. They start with gentle warm-ups with body tapping and joint rotations. Then he shifts the class into flows, which are flowing patterns of movement combined with powerful stances. "For me, qigong brings me back to my center, a sense of peace, a sense of hopefulness," Guadagni says. "It tunes me into my connection with nature, whether I'm practicing in my yard or by the river or even just in a studio or in a house. I can kind of find that sense of optimism." — Brianna Murschel Qigong with Nate is 5:30 pm to 6:30 pm every Tuesday in June and July at Emerald Park Pavillion, 1400 Lake Drive. Classes are $10 each. More information at bio.site/NateGuadagni.

SOCIAL DANCE

Two Pacific Northwest-born bands, The Decemberists and The Head And The Heart are meeting amid their separate tours to play a show together in Bend July 12 at Hayden Homes Amphitheater at 6 pm. The Decemberists, formed in Portland during the early 2000s, will tour 21 U.S. cities through the summer, accompanied at most shows, including this one, by indie-alternative musicians Ratboys. The Decembrists have been described as "hyperliter-ate folk-rock" and are known for their narratively dense and genre-bending songs. Indie-rockers The Head and the Heart, originally from Seattle, join the Decemberists solely for the Bend show. They are going on their own tour this summer, playing solo shows and performing at music festivals. The Decemberists are partnered with Plusl, a nonprofit that uses events to fundraise for social causes. PlusI receives $1 from each ticket purchased for the tour and uses it to aid social and environmental justice initiatives. If you are driving to Bend, then note that the venue is mostly grass and has no permanent seating. Seat cushions, beach towels and yoga mats are permitted on the lawn, but chairs are not. If you really want to nerd out on The Decembrists, check out lead singer Colin Meloy's Substack at ColinMeloy.substack.com. In his May 23 post he writes, "the area in front of the stage in a standing room show is a sacred space," and decries that the audience had to pay more to be there. Umm, head's up, Hayden Homes Amphi-

Emotional, powerful and intimate describes The Last Five Years, a 2001 musical created by Jason Robert Brown. It was adapted into a comedic musical film starring Anna Kendrick and Jeremy Jordan in 2014. Pegasus Playhouse is staging an upcoming production of The Last Five Years June 14 to 30 under the direction of Scott Frazier-Maskiell, who also founded Pegasus Playhouse. Watch as a tragic love story unfolds over the past five years. Cathy (Lexy Neale), an actress, strives to save her marriage, but her writer husband, Jamie (Esack Francis Grueskin), wants to end their relationship. The unconventional structure of the production consists of Cathy's story told backward from the break up to when they meet, and Jamie's story told in the opposite order. These lovers face different challenges as one falls in love with someone else and career dedication creates a divide in the relationship. A quartet of four musicians will accompany the characters through each of the songs. The chemistry on stage bleeds out into reality as Neale and Grueskin got engaged in real life. "Expect humor, drama, sadness, joy. The full joy of musical theater," Frazier-Maskiell says of the musical. "There's every kind of song from a comic song to a tragic song. And two amazing performers. I will say that they are fantastic actors."-Brianna Murschel

The Last Five Years runs June 14 to 30 and is 7 pm Fridays and Saturdays and 3 pm Sundays at Pegasus Playhouse, 402 Main Street in Springfield. Tickets are $15 for K-12 students and $20 for adults at PegasusPlayhouse.com

Corvallis Knights at Spfd. Drifters, 4:45pm, Hamlin THE AUSTRALIAN PINK FLOYD SHOW PERFORMING AT THE 'ALL THAT'S TO COME TOUR' IN 2022 Courtesy of The Australian Pink Floyd Show

The Australian Pink Floyd Show has sold over five million tickets worldwide, captivating audiences in over 30 countries and comes to Eugene August 4 at the Hult Center. The tribute band began its journey 36 years ago in Adelaide, Australia. The original Pink Floyd sound is characterized by its psychedelic themes and thought-provoking lyrics. Its influence on the music world has been immensely profound as albums like The Dark Side of the Moon and The Wall have left an undeniable mark on the history of rock-and-roll. Capturing the essence of such a band is no easy feat, yet The Australian Pink Floyd Show has managed to do just that — the cover band has meticulously replicated the iconic sound of Pink Floyd, encapsulating the ethereal guitar solos and the iconic deep-hearted vocals the band is known for. Pink Floyd's own guitarist, David Gilmour, recognized the cover band for its preservation and precise execution. He ended up using the tribute band for his 50th birthday performance in 2004. The Australian Pink Floyd continues to mesmerize Pink Floyd loyalists around the globe, consistently seeking new audiences that crave the very jaw-dropping performance tour shows that Pink Floyd was famous for. - Faheem Khan

Travel back to a magical time as one of Shakespeare's mysterious, comical and romantic plays unfolds. Free Shakespeare in the Park presents The Tempest, which runs August 3 to 25 on Saturdays and Sundays at Amazon Community Center's south lawn amphitheater. Dive into a world where Prospero (Christian Abbott), Duke of Milan, is banished by his evil brother to a remote and magical island with his young daughter Miranda (Hailey Flynn), who later sparks a romance with Prince Ferdinand (Claire Valentine). "My favorite part will probably be the romantic scene where the Goddess comes up and is singing and the young lovers had to do a dance together for their first kind of meeting," Sharon Selove, Free Shakespeare in the Park's artistic director. The darkness that begins with betrayal and revenge takes a turn with a reunion and forgiveness while comedic relief is spread throughout the production and original music composed by Christian Abbott. Bring chairs, blankets and picnics for the two-hour show and 15-minute intermission. Enjoy "beautiful Amazon Park. It's such a lovely place to put on a play with the sun setting in the west and the park and all of the ambient sounds," Selove says. - Brianna Murschel The Tempest is 6 pm on Saturdays and Sundays from August 3 to 25 at Amazon Community Center's south lawn amphitheater, 2700 Hilyard

EUGENEWEEKLY.COM

Classical music can be an intimidating maze for kids. Just watch their eyes glaze when you name famous and long-dead composers like Johann Sebastian Bach, Georg Telemann, Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart or Gustav Holst. Why are they important? Fortunately, the Oregon Bach Festival annually throws a lifeline for kids, and this year OBF has three relaxing and family-friendly events on successive Saturdays. Carnival of the Animals, with the OBF Modern Orchestra, gets things rolling June 29. The concert is a humorous musical story about 14 fun animals, including an elegant swan serenading to playful kangaroo capers. Before the concert, the Hult Center lobby will be busy with face painting, a photo booth and snacks with arts and crafts from Adventure! Children's Museum and the Museum of Natural and Cultural History. Kids can explore space July 6 with Planets, Myths and Music at the Eugene Science Center and embark on a self-guided scavenger hunt as well as experience a planetarium show. The "King of Instruments" - the pipe organ - gets its turn to shine July 13 with Pipes and Pedals. OrgelKids USA, a nonprofit based in Corvallis and whose goal is to make the organ accessible to children, will be at Eugene Saturday Market with its organ-building kits, and kids can learn about the history and structure of the pipe organ. — Dan Buckwalter

Family Fun In The Sun: Adventures in Archaeology, 10am-5pm, Museum of To the tune of "All Star" by Smash Mouth

Somebody just told me This summer's gonna show me Everything I wanna see in Eugene. I was in the EW newsroom And I could never not assume

That the Smash Mouth show August 9 in Redmond is the place to be.

Well the summer is coming And I will be coming to the Smash Mouth show Hitting that dance floor like it's nothing.

Didn't make sense to skip this show While I'm down there I'll have some beer and some fun.

So much to drink

So much to eat

I wonder what's going on with my feet As I throw it back on the dance floor Without Smash Mouth life is a bore.

Hey now You're in Redmond Seeing Smash Mouth

Get drunk. Hey now

It's August 9 Get your groove on Get funked.

All the tickets aren't sold Only $45 to see the show.

— Bentley Freeman

Smash Mouth is 4 pm August 9 at General Duffy's Waterhole, 404 South West Forest Avenue, Redmond. Tickets can be purchased online at www.etix.com. Adults are $45, children for $25, VIP for $120 and day-of for $60.

It's time to get your sweat on! Willamalane's Fitness Expo and Health & Wellness Fair will return for the third time on June 8, just in time to explore a healthy new lifestyle. The expo was originally scheduled for Jan. 20 when fitness is often on the mind, but it had to be canceled due to the ice storm. Now it's back and better than ever before the summer heat can bear down. The event features a variety of fitness classes ranging from dance to strength training for guests to try on a first-come, first-serve basis. "We want to provide an easy way to try group classes and education sessions while learning more about new instructors or seasonal offerings," Whitney Hoshaw, Willamalane's marketing and communications manager, says. The Health & Wellness Fair running alongside the Fitness Expo offers local, healthy foods to sample and a raffle for prizes such as a fitness and wellness basket containing assorted gift cards, fitness equipment and self-care products. — Emma J Nelson

Pink Martini featuring China Forbes performs June 9 at the Hult Center. In the early '90s, Pink Martini was formed in Portland to connect people to music for a greater purpose. Thomas Lauderdale, the band's founder and pianist, set out to create a band that provides "more beautiful and inclusive musical soundtracks for political fundraisers for causes such as civil rights, affordable housing, cleaning up the Willamette River, funding for libraries, public broadcasting, education and parks," the band's website says. The group draws inspiration from around the world and crosses genres, including classical, jazz and old-fashioned pop. Pink Martini features 12 musicians and has songs in over 25 different languages. A French sensation — and one of their hit songs — "Sympathique" was written by Forbes and Lauderdale. The band made a European debut at the Cannes Film Festival in 1997 and at the Oregon Symphony in 1998. This year, Pink Martini celebrates 30 years of performing together. This Sunday, listen for songs from the album Hey Eugene! as Pink Martini heads back to its home state

Pink Martini featuring China Forbes is 7:30 pm June 9 at the Hult Center. Tickets range from $38 to $68 at HultCenter.org. — Brianna Murschel

Founded in 1972 by local activists Marion Phelan and Mel Kang, Eugene Friends of Farm Workers (EFFW) emerged from a blend of local activism and the national wave of advocacy in favor of migrant labor rights. EFFW fought for the dignity and rights of farm workers who were often subjected to deplorable working conditions. The current "Who is Lane County" exhibit at the Lane County History Museum is a testament to the legacy of EFFW. The interactive exhibit allows locals to experience how significant local activism was in Eugene and, specifically, how it contributed to a visit by Cesar Chavez himself. The EFFW's was a crucial part of a broader movement that brought about significant changes in labor laws and working conditions, not just in Oregon but across the nation. This exhibit honors their legacy and highlights the continued relevance of their cause in today's world. It reminds us that the fight for worker rights is ongoing and that the spirit of solidarity and activism from the 70s still resonates today. Former EFFW member and activist Kurt Wilcox says, "People have no idea that there were active migrant movements and boycotts or that there was a real active presence of farm workers right here in Eugene. Who living now knew that this ever happened?"

It's the start of Pride Month, and there's no better way to celebrate it than to hang out with drag queens. They will be the feature performers at this month's First Friday ArtWalk sponsored by the Lane Arts Council, and it will be a show full of amazing clothes and makeup, music and witty repartee at the Farmers Market Pavilion. There's a free photo booth where you can capture either your fresh look or have your picture taken with your favorite drag queen, then you can sit it in on Drag Story Time with Fanny's Magic Queendom. After the ArtWalk, the fun continues with the ArtWalk After Hours Drag Performance. Two sets of performances will feature the likes of Daphne Bertha Storm, Morena (pictured), Karress Ann Slaughter, Nicole Serenity Storm, Petra LaFaye, Maliena and Drake Demonwing. Sit back and enjoy.

The First Friday ArtWalk is 5:30 to 8 pm. Drag Story Time with Fanny's Magic Queendom is 6 to 6:30 pm. The ArtWalk After Hours Drag Performance is 7:30 to 9:30 pm, all at Farmers Market Pavilion, 85 East 8th Avenue. More information about the ArtWalk is at LaneArts.org. FREE. - Dan Buckwalter

Pop Tarts with Pacori

FAMILIES ALL ACROSS EUGENE ARE SPENDING THEIR SATURDAY MORNINGS WATCHING CARTOONS AT CAFFÉ PACORI

By Emerson Brady

s a kid there was nothing more sacred than Saturday morning. Saturday mornings meant sleeping in, stealing the comic section from dad's morning newspaper and watching Tom and Jerry duke it out for the millionth time.

Eric Pierce, owner of Caffé Pacori, is well aware of this holy time of the week, so much so that he has dedicated his adult Saturday mornings to crafting the perfect Saturday morning for the youth of today through Pacori's weekly Saturday Morning Cartoons event.

Every Saturday morning, from 10 am to 2 pm, Pierce stocks his coffee shop with pop tarts and sugary cereals, puts '80s cartoons on a giant projector screen and watches as people pour in to enjoy a Saturday morning from their childhood.

"I meant to do it once because I thought it was funny, or maybe annually," Pierce says. "I'm normally off Saturdays and Jason [Dean] runs the shop, but one day he called me and he was like, 'Hey can you come and help? There's a line of people out the door!"

Pierce said that the first Saturday morning cartoon on

Oct. 21, 2023 was such a hit, they ran out of everything halfway through the day. "It's these repeat people who come out with their wonderful families who they bring, too," Pierce says. "I just love being a part of their weekend. Like, their kids are going to remember this for the rest of their lives, you know?"

He says the idea for Saturday Morning Cartoons came to him after visiting Japan last September. "When I went to Japan, I was crazy inspired because it doesn't matter where you are, it could be the most serious place ever, and they will still have toys on the counter. Cartoons are everywhere," he says.

If any coffee shop is going to transform itself into a Saturday morning palace for kids and parents alike to bask in nostalgia and sugar, it's Pacori. Walking into the unassuming warehouse in west Eugene for the first time is a somewhat magical experience. Inside, the walls are covered top to bottom with posters, pictures and sculptures.

You can't miss the Fraggle Rock character who rides a bicycle that comes out of the wall surrounded by dreamy clouds. In glass cases are vintage, toys and trinkets for people to play with and sometimes purchase. In a side room, pinball machines and Pacman games fill the space. And don't even get me started on the "best bathroom in Eugene," according to Eugene Weekly "Best Of" voters. According to EW's "Best Of" article, the bathroom is inspired by Mattel's goblin-themed hand puppet toys, "boglins." The bathroom, created by artist Alessandra Sanniola and barista/carpenter Dean, is adorned with moss and lantern lighting. He says the building looks this way because of his motto: "If I don't have a reason to say no, I say yes."

Pierce owes a great deal of the decorating to former Pacori delivery driver Christina Coleman and Dean. "Jason will literally have an idea, work on it all night and crash on the couches down here," he says.

On a rack in the front of the store is Pacori merchandise: hats, T-shirts, stickers — all designed by roaster Brit Howard.

The irony of it all is that Pacori didn't look like this three years ago. In fact, Pacori wasn't even selling storefront coffee — it was a coffee roaster and distributor originally owned by Max Orsini. And Pierce was just a guy looking to work a job with his best friend, Mike Allen.

"I just wanted to hang out with Mike," Pierce says. "That is how this whole thing happened."

Allen got Pierce a job sweeping up grounds and helping him roast in 2004. "I really had to prove myself back then because I think the former owner could tell we were there just to hang out together," Pierce jokes.

Allen left Pacori in 2005 but still comes around to help out all the time, according to Pierce. After nine years of roasting, Pierce bought the business from Holly Monnette, who bought it from Orsini and kept it as a roastery until the pandemic.

"This all happened because of the pandemic," Pierce says, pointing to the artwork surrounding him. He goes on to explain that after the pandemic halted distribution, Pacori tried delivering coffee directly to people's homes. The deliveries were such a success that people started showing up at their warehouse asking for coffee.

"I didn't know how people even found us," Pierce jokes.

As more people began to find the warehouse, Pierce thought it might be nice to clean things up a bit and maybe try offering a small storefront. In June 2020 he ripped out the old carpet in the office room at the warehouse and started selling cold brew there.

"And that kept growing to the point where people were waiting outside," he says. "I kept thinking, 'Why would people come all the way out here for this?' so we quickly had to extend to the rest of the warehouse."

In March 2023 Pacori had officially opened up a majority of the warehouse space to use as a storefront offering coffee, toys and Pierce's mom's baked goods.

"All I ever wanted was to own a coffee shop where my friends and I could hang out," Pierce says. "I just wanted a place to hang out."

Pacori is celebrating 20 years this June. While Pierce says he doesn't have big plans yet, he's sure he'll think of something. "I'm just not sure if I could top Saturday Morning Cartoons," he says.

Caffé Pacori is open 10 am to 2 pm Monday through Saturday at 255 Wallis St., Suite 3. Saturday Morning Cartoons play 10 am to 2 pm.

'm 62, and I get to play rock 'n' roll for a living," says Art Alexakis, alternative rock band Everclear founder, singer songwriter and guitarist. "I am living the dream."

On June 8, at the Cuthbert Amphitheater, Alexakis and Everclear will be taking us back to a simpler time — the '90s — when dialup internet had begun to reign supreme and Everclear's song "Santa Monica" off of the Sparkle and Fade album that took the world by storm.

As a member of the young, newly converted alt-rock listeners in their early 20s, Everclear's discography hasn't left my regular rotation. Alexakis says that this isn't just a testament to Everclear, but to rock and roll.

"There's not really a lot of contemporary rock 'n' roll compared to the '90s," Alexakis says. "I was stoked to be a part of all the music that was going on."

Now that Everclear is over three decades old, Alexakis says he loves the responses he's received over the years for their music. He specifically notes the connection people have with the song "Father of Mine," off of its junior album So Much For The Afterglow.

"It's very personal to a lot of people. I mean, dude, I see grown-ass men crying. Like big tattooed biker-looking guys, when I play this live," Alexakis says.

"They're fucking bawling at the front of stage," he says. "It's touching; some real music can do that."

This connection people have with music is one Alexakis remembers discovering at a young age. Sneaking quietly out his bedroom as a three or four-year-old, Alexakis could hear his parents downstairs on their divan, "fiercely" smoking cigarettes and watching The Ed Sullivan Show. Then he hears The Beatles start to play.

"I'd never heard or seen anything like it. It literally took control. I remember the feeling in my body, it took control of my body," Alexakis says. "I ran to the TV and just started jumping up and down."

"I saw The Beatles on TV when I was four and I never wanted to do anything else," he says.

Starting to play in bands when he was 16, Alexakis says he couldn't get signed until Everclear was founded 16 years later.

"Even with all the ups and downs and the roller coaster of life," he says, "I wouldn't do anything else in the world."

Everclear plays the Cuthbert Amphitheater, 2300 Leo Harris Pkwy, Saturday, June 8. Advance tickets are $45 online at TheCuthbert. com. Gates open at 4:30 pm and show at 6 pm..

HIKE TO THE NORTH UMPQUA'S PICTOGRAPHS AND LOOKOUTS

By William L. Sullivan

ou have to hike to see the ancient pictographs and historic fire lookouts of the North Umpqua. Prehistoric rock art is rare in western Oregon, where the rainy climate generally erodes the drawings.

At Medicine Creek Rock Shelter, a tilted boulder has protected figures of people, spirits and a horse. A few miles away, a little-known trail up Illahee Rock leads to two of the oldest fire lookout buildings in the state. For a trip through history, hike to both in a day.

One way to protect such fragile places is to make them a little hard to visit. In this case you can expect a long drive.

To start, drive Interstate 5 to downtown Roseburg exit 124 and follow "Diamond Lake" signs through town. Then drive Highway 138 for 55 miles along the scenic North Umpqua River. At milepost 55 turn left onto Medicine Creek Road. Go straight to avoid a confusion of side roads near this turnoff. After 1.3 miles of gravel, park in a large pullout on the right signed "Medicine Creek Rock Shelter."

The 0.2-mile path switchbacks up through an old-growth forest of 5-foot-diameter Douglas-firs, incense cedars and sugarpines. At trail's end, beside a leaning house-sized boulder, a wooden deck discourages people from approaching the rock art too close — or, heaven forbid — touching anything.

Trailhead. After 1.3 miles, beyond a powerhouse and a trailhead, park at the Soda Springs Picnic Area on the left.

The spectacular basalt cliff on the far shore of the North Umpqua River is one of the many lava flows that have coursed down this valley from vents near Crater Lake. As the lava cools it cracks into columns perpendicular to the surface. Here the ground must have been uneven, because the columns splay like sausages.

After lunch at Soda Springs, it's time to visit the two fire lookouts. The hike isn't too difficult, gaining 550 feet of elevation in 0.9 miles. The drive, however, involves a long gravel road.

Return to Highway 138 and turn west back toward Roseburg for 8 miles. Near milepost 47, and 0.3 miles before the Dry Creek Store, turn south on gravel Illahee Road 4760.

Follow this one-lane road uphill, ignoring a spur to the right at the 1.4-mile mark for the Illahee Flats Trail. After a total of 7.8 miles you'll reach a fork in a pass. Veer right on Road 100, a track that's bumpy and a little brushy.

After 1.3 rough miles you'll reach another junction. The trail to the lookout begins as steep, rocky Road 104 up to the left. This track is simply too rough to drive. So instead fork to the right a few hundred feet to park. Then walk back to Road 104 and hike it uphill 0.2 mile to the trailhead.

The 0.7-mile path that begins here is a delight, ascending a ridge full of rock gardens. A wildfire in 2017 burned this ridge very lightly, improving the views while reviving slopes of wildflowers and huckleberries.

The summit has two lookouts — a towerless cupolastyle building from 1925 and a "new" lookout from 1958 atop a 30-foot tower. If you climb its two rickety flights of stairs you'll reach a locked trap door. Although a frustrated visitor has sawed a hole so it's possible to squirm through, you probably shouldn't.

The view is just as good from the ground. Look for

THE SPECTACULAR BASALT CLIFF ON THE FAR SHORE OF THE NORTH UMPQUA RIVER IS ONE OF THE MANY LAVA FLOWS THAT HAVE COURSED DOWN THIS VALLEY FROM VENTS NEAR CRATER LAKE. AS THE LAVA COOLS IT CRACKS INTO COLUMNS PERPENDICULAR TO THE SURFACE. HERE THE GROUND MUST HAVE BEEN UNEVEN, BECAUSE THE COLUMNS SPLAY LIKE SAUSAGES.

You may have to squint to discern some of the red ochre and blue figures. The horse and rider on the left suggest that these pictographs can't be older than the fifteenth century, when the Spanish introduced cavalry to the Americas.

After examining the rock art, and before tackling the steeper 0.9-mile trail to Illahee Rock, why not stop for lunch? The picnic site I'm going to recommend has a spectacular riverside view of a columnar basalt cliff.

Drive back on Medicine Creek Road to Highway 138, but just before you reach the highway turn right on a gravel road, following a pointer for the Soda Springs pointy Mount Thielsen to the east, with snowy Mount Bailey and the rim of Crater Lake to the right.

Atop this lovely, lonely summit, it's worth thinking about the tribespeople who trekked to such a remote part of the Old Cascades in search of "medicine" — the wisdom of the land's spirits. Generations of lookout staffers must have drawn solace from that same source.

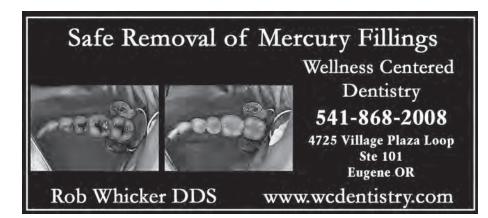

Today the trails to these historic sites are largely forgotten. How many of the people driving by on their way to Crater Lake hear the subtle call of the old spirits?

FREE WILL ASTROLOGY BY ROB BREZSNY

ARIES (MARCH 21-APRIL 19): What potentials should you strive to ripen as the expansive planet Jupiter glides through your astrological House of Connection, Communication and Education in the coming months? I'll offer my intuitions. On the downside, there may be risks of talking carelessly, forging superficial links and learning inessential lessons. On the plus side, you will generate good luck and abundant vitality if you use language artfully, seek out the finest  $\frac{1}{2}$ teachings, and connect with quality people and institutions. In the most favorable prognosis I can imagine, you will become smarter and wiser. Your knack for avoiding boredom and finding fascination will be at a peak.

TAURUS (APRIL 20-MAY 20): Since 1969, Taurus singer-songwriter Willie Nelson has played his favorite guitar in over 10,000 shows. His name for it is Trigger, Willie doesn't hold onto it simply for nostalgic reasons. He says it has the greatest tone he has ever heard in a guitar. Though bruised and scratched, it gets a yearly check-up and repair. Nelson regards it as an extension of himself, like a part of his body. Is there anything like Trigger in your life, Taurus? Now is a good time to give it extra care and attention. The same is true for all your valuable belongings and accessories. Give them big doses of love

GEMINI (MAY 21-JUNE 20): Off the coast of West Africa is an imaginary place called Null Island. A weather buoy is permanently moored there. Geographers have nicknamed it "Soul Buoy." It's the one location on Earth where zero degrees latitude intersects with zero degrees longitude. Since it's at sea level, its elevation is zero, too. I regard this spot as a fun metaphor for the  $\hbox{current state of your destiny, Gemini. You are at a triple zero point, with your innocence almost}$ fully restored. The horizons are wide, the potentials are expansive, and you are as open and free as it's possible for you to be.

CANCER (JUNE 21-JULY 22): When I worked as a janitor at India Joze restaurant in Santa Cruz, California, I did the best I could. But I was unskilled in the janitorial arts. I couldn't fix broken machines, and I lacked expertise about effective cleaning agents. Plus, I was lazy. Who could blame me? I wasn't doing my life's work. I had no love for my job. Is there an even remotely comparable situation in your life, Cancerian? Are you involved with tasks that neither thrill you nor provide you with useful education? The coming months will be an excellent time to wean  $% \left( 1\right) =\left( 1\right) +\left( 1\right)$ vourself from these activities.

LEO (JULY 23-AUG. 22): I foresee two possible approaches for you in the coming months. Either will probably work, so it's up to you to decide which feels most fun and interesting. In thefirst option, you will pursue the rewards you treasure by creating your own rules as you outfox  $\frac{1}{2}$ the system's standard way of doing things. In the second alternative, you will aim for success by mostly playing within the rules of the system except for some ethical scheming and maneuvering that outflank the system's rules. My advice is to choose one or the other, and not try to do both.

 $\emph{VIRGO}$  (AUG. 23-SEPT. 22): Please note that during the next 12 months, I may seem a bit pushy in my dealings with you. I will encourage you to redefine and enhance your ambitions. I will exhort you to dream bigger. There may come times when you wish I wouldn't dare you to be so bold. I will understand, then, if you refrain from regularly reading my horoscopes. Maybe you are comfortable with your current type of success and don't want my cheerleading. But if you would welcome an ally like me — an amiable motivator and sympathetic booster — I will be glad to help you strive for new heights of accomplishment.

LIBRA (SEPT. 23-OCT. 22): Three months after Rachel Denning bore her fourth child, she and her husband sold everything they owned and embarked on a nomadic life. They have been roaming ever since, adding three more kids along the way. She says they have become addicted to "the personal transformation that travel extracts." She loves how wandering free "causes you to be uncomfortable, to step out of the familiar and into the unknown. It compels you to see with new eyes and to consider things you had never been aware of. It removes preconceptions, biases, and small-mindedness." If you were ever going to flirt with Rachel Denning's approach, Libra, the next 12 months would be a favorable time. Could you approximate the same healing  $growth\ without\ globetrotting\ journeys?\ Probably.\ Homework:\ Ask\ your\ imagination\ to\ show\ you$ appealing ways to expand.

SCORPIO (OCT. 23-NOV. 21): Among the Europeans who first settled in South America were Jews who had been forcibly converted to Christianity by Portuguese and Spanish persecutions. Centuries later, some families resolved to reclaim their Jewish heritage. They led a movement called la sangre llama — a Spanish phrase meaning "the blood is calling." I invite you to be inspired by this retrieval, Scorpio. The coming months will be an excellent time to commune with aspects of your past that have been neglected or forgotten. Your ancestors may have messages for you. Go in search of missing information about your origins.

SAGITTARIUS (NOV. 22-DEC. 21): If you simply let the natural flow take you where it will in the coming weeks, you would become a magnet for both degenerative and creative influences. Fortunately, you are reading this oracle, which will help ensure the natural flow won't lead you toward degenerative influences. With this timely oracle, I am advising you to monitor and suppress any unconscious attractions you might have for bewildering risks and seemingly interesting possibilities that are actually dead ends. Don't flirt with decadent glamour or fake beauty, dear Sagittarius! Instead, make yourself fully available for only the best resources that will uplift and inspire you.

CAPRICORN (DEC. 22-JAN. 19): Capricorn politician Robert F. Kennedy Jr. is campaigning to be U.S. President. But oops: He recently confessed that a parasitic worm once ate a portion of his brain, damaging his memory and cognitive skills. "The worm is dead now," he assured us, as if that were a good reason to vote for him. Why am I bringing this up? Like most of us, you have secrets that if revealed might wreck at least a bit of mayhem. As tempting as it might be to share them with the world — perhaps in an effort to feel free of their burden — it's best to keep them hidden for now. Kennedy's brain worm is in that category. Don't be like him in the coming weeks. Keep your reputation and public image strong. Show your best facets to the world.

 $AQU\!ARIU\!S$  (JAN. 20-FEB. 18): The English and French word "amateur" comes from lpha matus, the past participle of the Latin word amare, which means "to love." According to one definition, an amateur is "someone who pursues sports, studies, or other activities purely for pleasure instead of for financial gain or professional advancement." In accordance with astrological omens, I encourage you to make this a featured theme in the coming months. On a regular basis, seek out experiences simply because they make you feel good. Engage in lots of playtime. At least part-time, specialize in fun and games.

PISCES (FEB. 19-MARCH 20): Good news, Pisces: In the coming weeks, one of your flaws will mysteriously become less flawed. It will lose some of its power to undermine you. If you engage in focused meditation about it, you could rob it of even more of its obstructive force. More good  $\,$ news: You will have an enhanced capacity to distinguish between skillful pretending and earthy authenticity. No one can trick you or fool you. Can you handle even more good news? You will have a skillful knack for finding imperfect but effective solutions to problems that have no perfect solution.
